

1 Keith Beauchamp (012434)
Shelley Tolman (030945)
2 COPPERSMITH BROCKELMAN PLC
2800 N. Central Avenue, Suite 1900
3 Phoenix, AZ 85004
Telephone: (602) 381-5488
4 kbeauchamp@cblawyers.com
stolman@cblawyers.com
5

Michelle Lapointe*
6 Norma Ventura*
SOUTHERN POVERTY LAW CENTER
7 P.O. Box 1287
Decatur, GA 30031
8 Telephone: (404) 521-6700
michelle.lapointe@splcenter.org
9 norma.ventura@splcenter.org

10 Matthew J. Schlesinger* Jason A. Carey*
11 Terra White Fulham*
COVINGTON & BURLING LLP
12 One City Center, 850 Tenth Street, NW
Washington, DC 20001-4956
13 Telephone: (202) 662-5581
mschlesinger@cov.com
14 jcarey@cov.com
tfulham@cov.com
15

16 [Additional Counsel Listed on Signature Page]
17 [*Pro hac vice application forthcoming]

18 UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
19 DISTRICT OF ARIZONA

20 A.P.F. on his own behalf and on behalf of his minor child, O.B.; and J.V.S. on his own behalf 21 and on behalf of his minor child, H.Y.,

22 Plaintiffs,

23 v.

24 United States of America,

25 Defendant.

No.

COMPLAINT

JURY TRIAL DEMANDED

INTRODUCTION

1
2       1.       This action seeks damages for two asylum-seeking families forcibly
3 separated by the United States government: A.P.F. and his son, O.B.; and J.V.S. and his 4 daughter, H.Y.<sup>1</sup>

5       2.       When federal agents came to take Herlinda from her father José, she was 6 just five years old. She clutched her dad, and screamed, “Papi, don’t leave me! Don’t let 7 me go!”

8       3.       When federal agents came to take Obet from his father Abel, he was just 9 seven years old—a frail child with a serious heart condition. He clung desperately to his 10 father’s neck, and screamed as agents physically tore him from his father’s arms.

11       4.       José and Abel, were forced to watch, helplessly, as their children were 12 dragged away to an unknown fate.

13       5.       The United States government tore these families apart pursuant to a cruel
14 and unconstitutional policy: The government intended to inflict terror and harm on these 15 small children and their fathers, as a means of deterring others from seeking to enter the 16 United States.

17       6.       Herlinda and her father José, and Obet and his father Abel, fled persecution
18 in their home countries, only to find it in the very place they sought refuge — the United 19 States of America.

20       7.       Starting in 2017, the United States government tore thousands of young 21 children away from their parents. The children and their parents were not told when—or 22 even if—they would ever see each other again. The children were sent to facilities and 23 foster homes hundreds or thousands of miles away from their parents, and in many cases
24 were subject to abuse and neglect while in the custody of the United States government.

25 _____
26 <sup>1</sup> For ease of reference and to protect Plaintiffs’ identities, A.P.F. will be referenced 27 hereafter by the pseudonym Abel; O.B. by the pseudonym Obet; J.V.S. by the 28 pseudonym José; and H.Y. by the pseudonym Herlinda. Plaintiffs will file a separate motion to proceed with pseudonyms.

1           8.       Although the full number of separations is yet unknown, it is estimated that 2 the U.S. government has separated more than 5,000 children from their parents at the 3 southern border since 2017.

4           9.       After the separations, government officers inflicted additional trauma by 5 refusing to inform parents and children of each other's whereabouts or well-being, failing 6 to facilitate communication between separated parents and children, and failing to 7 implement any tracking system to ensure families could be reunited.

8           10.      The government did not allow children and their parents to communicate in 9 any way for weeks or months. Parents did not know where their children were, or even if 10 they were safe—and had no way to comfort or protect them. Children were terrified and 11 could not understand what had happened to them or why it happened. Why had their 12 parents abandoned them to strangers?

13           11.      The government's policy of forcibly taking children from their parents
14 caused extraordinary trauma to thousands of families, including Plaintiffs—two fathers
15 and their two children who were separated for months after being detained at the U.S.-
16 Mexico border in Arizona in May 2018.

17           12.      Herlinda and Obet were taken away from their fathers and remained 18 separated from them, in the custody of strangers, for more than two months. Both 19 suffered abuse while in U.S. government custody.

20           13.      For weeks, the fathers, despite desperate pleas for information, were told 21 nothing about the safety or location of their children—and had no way to communicate 22 with their children.

23           14.      Later, the government provided only limited information about the 24 children's locations and safety, and afforded only minimal opportunities for the families
25 to communicate, often at the fathers' expense. Abel was able to speak to Obet just once
26 over the approximately 70 days they were separated. José spoke with Herlinda only 27 about six times during the at least 71 days they were separated.

28

1           15. The government understood the harm that it was inflicting on these 2 families. Indeed, it took children from their parents not despite the harm, but because of 3 it: The government intended to use the terror inflicted on these families to deter other
4 families from migrating to the United States.

5           16. Plaintiffs suffered, and continue to suffer, physical, mental, and emotional
6 harm because of the intentional, reckless, and negligent acts of U.S. government 7 policymakers at the highest levels, whose goal was to inflict harm and instill terror.
8 Plaintiffs suffered, and continue to suffer, further harm because of the intentional,
9 reckless, and negligent acts and omissions of federal actors who used unreasonable force
10 and cruelty to separate José and Abel from their children and failed to exercise basic care 11 or even simple human decency.

12           17. Even after reunification, the effects of the government’s inhumane conduct
13 continue to exact a toll on Plaintiffs. Children, especially those young and vulnerable 14 like the minor Plaintiffs, suffer trauma when they are separated from their parents, even 15 temporarily. Such childhood trauma harms cognitive development and emotional growth, 16 and increases the risk of disease and mental health disorders.

17           18. As a result of the separation, Obet exhibits symptoms of post-traumatic
18 stress disorder (“PTSD”) and suffers from traumatic flashbacks, nightmares, and extreme
19 separation anxiety. Herlinda also exhibits PTSD symptoms and has nightmares, is quick 20 to anger, and suffers from low self-esteem.

21           19. The fathers also suffered emotional trauma— as would any parent who is 22 deprived of any ability to protect their child, and later learns that their child has suffered
23 and lives with continued pain. Abel experiences acute headaches, struggles to handle
24 stress, and is overcome with sadness and fear at random times. José is deeply depressed,
25 constantly sad, and has difficulty concentrating. These parents and their children now 26 face an increased risk of developing additional mental health disorders, including severe 27 anxiety, depression, and suicidal ideation.

28

1           30. Defendant is the United States of America, acting through DHS, HHS, and 2 DOJ, “federal agencies” of the United States under 28 U.S.C. § 2671, and their
3 employees, officers, and agents, including but not limited to CBP and ICE, subcomponent
4 agencies of DHS that are under the direction, authority, and control of the Secretary of 5 Homeland Security; ORR, a subcomponent agency of HHS that is under the direction,
6 authority, and control of the Secretary of Health and Human Services; and the Office of 7 the Attorney General within the DOJ.

8           31. The federal officers referenced in this Complaint were at all relevant times
9 employees of the United States, working within the scope and course of their 10 employment with the federal agencies listed above.

11           32. DHS employees were responsible for separating José and Abel from their 12 children. DHS employees were also responsible for supervising and managing detained 13 individuals at CBP and ICE facilities, including those located in Arizona, Georgia, and 14 Texas where José and Abel were detained.

15           33. HHS employees are responsible for supervising and managing the detention 16 of children the government classifies as unaccompanied, including at facilities and foster
17 homes in New York where Obet and Herlinda were detained while separated from their 18 fathers.

19           34. High-ranking officials from DHS, HHS, and DOJ worked together to 20 design and promulgate the unlawful and unconstitutional family separation policy, 21 pursuant to which Plaintiffs were subject to significant harm.

22           35. At all relevant times, all DHS employees referenced in this Complaint who 23 interacted with Plaintiffs were acting as investigative or law enforcement officers. 28
24 U.S.C. § 2680(h).

1 STATEMENT OF FACTS

2 A. The United States Developed and Implemented the Inhumane
3 Separation Policy for the Improper Purpose of Deterring Future
4 Asylum Seekers

5 36. The United States took thousands of children from their parents, intending 6 to cause terror, anguish, and harm. It deliberately used cruelty to deter future migrants
7 from seeking asylum in the United States. The policy violated the Constitution, statutory 8 and common law, and basic human decency.

9 1. Beginning in Early 2017, the United States Began Planning a 10 Family Separation Policy with Knowledge of and Intent to 11 Cause Harm

12 37. Beginning in February 2017, DHS officials began considering a policy of 13 separating and holding parents and children arriving at the U.S.-Mexico border as a 14 means of deterring the arrival of asylum seekers at this border. On March 3, 2017, press 15 reports showed that DHS had been considering this policy, which DHS acknowledged in 16 a statement explaining that “the Department of Homeland Security continually explores 17 options that may discourage those from even beginning the journey” north from Central 18 America to the U.S. border.<sup>5</sup>

19 38. The federal government knew—long before it instituted the family 20 separation policy to which Plaintiffs were ultimately subjected—of the harm it would 21 cause by separating children from their parents. For example, in 2016, the DHS Advisory 22 Committee on Family Residential Centers concluded that “the separation of families for 23 purposes of immigration enforcement or management, or detention is never in the best 24 interest of children,” and that “[f]amily separation in these circumstances raises serious 25 concerns and violates the best interests of the child—which requires prioritizing family

26 _____
27 <sup>5</sup> Julia Edwards Ainsley, Exclusive: Trump Administration Considering Separating
28 Women, Children at Mexico Border, REUTERS (Mar. 3, 2017), <https://perma.cc/P7DE-HX5A>.

1 integrity and the maintenance of emotional ties and relationships among family
2 members.”<sup>6</sup>

3 39. Nonetheless, in February 2017, a meeting of high-ranking federal officials
4 from ORR, DOJ, CBP and ICE took place at the office of the CBP Commissioner, and a 5 proposal to separate asylum-seeking parents from their children at the border was 6 discussed.<sup>7</sup> Commander Jonathan White, a high-ranking HHS official and then Deputy 7 Director of ORR’s Unaccompanied Children program who attended the meeting, later
8 expressed his concerns about the harms of family separation directly to then-ORR
9 director Scott Lloyd and other top officials.<sup>8</sup> Commander White has testified before
10 Congress that because “[s]eparating children poses significant risk of traumatic 11 psychological injury to the child,’ . . . neither he nor anyone he worked with ‘would ever 12 have supported such a policy.’”<sup>9</sup>

13 40. The publication of the March 3, 2017 news reports that DHS was 14 considering a deterrence policy of separating migrant parents and children at the border
15 was immediately met with an outcry of warnings from the medical community. The 16 American Academy of Pediatrics (“AAP”), among others, warned that such a policy 17 would affect “vulnerable, scared children” and urged policymakers to “exercise caution 18 to ensure that the emotional and physical stress children experience as they seek refuge in 19

---

20 <sup>6</sup> U.S. IMMIGRATION & CUSTOMS ENF’T, DEP’T OF HOMELAND SEC., REP. OF THE DHS 21 ADVISORY COMMITTEE ON FAMILY RESIDENTIAL CENTERS 2, 10 (2016), available at <https://perma.cc/TZ9C-CUMC>.

22 <sup>7</sup> House of Representatives, Subcommittee on Oversight and Investigations, Committee
23 on Energy and Commerce Hearing (Feb. 7, 2019), Unofficial transcript, available at 24 <https://perma.cc/F2EV-ZS9W> 1006-1024; 1131-1138 (testimony of Commander
25 Jonathan White, U.S. Public Health Service Commissioned Corps, U.S. Department of 26 Health and Human Services).

27 <sup>8</sup> Id.

28 <sup>9</sup> Colleen Long, Official Who Oversaw Migrant Kids: Separation Causes Trauma, AP
NEWS (Feb. 7, 2019), <https://perma.cc/BQ3T-U6RJ> (quoting testimony of Commander Jonathan White, U.S. Public Health Service Commissioned Corps.).

1 the United States is not exacerbated by the additional trauma of being separated from 2 their siblings, parents, or other relatives and caregivers.”<sup>10</sup>

3 41. Nonetheless, the Secretary of Homeland Security, John Kelly, confirmed
4 that DHS was considering this policy “in order to deter more movement” along the route
5 north from Central America taken by many asylum seekers.<sup>11</sup>

6 42. When confronted by the growing backlash to the then-proposed family
7 separation policy, Secretary Kelly soon appeared to change course, assuring the Senate
8 Committee on Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs in April 2017 that children 9 would be separated from their parents only “if the child’s life is in danger” or if the 10 parent was “an addict,”<sup>12</sup> rather than as a matter of course for families arriving at or 11 crossing the border.

12 43. The Administration’s own comments and the government’s response to the 13 many public warnings of the dire effects of a family separation policy show that the 14 Administration was well aware of the harms family separation would cause before it 15 implemented its family separation policy.

16 44. In response to the concerns raised by Commander White that a family 17 separation policy would “expose children to unnecessary risk of harm,” and “exceed the 18 capacity of the [ORR Unaccompanied Alien Children, or UAC] program,” White was 19 repeatedly assured by the then-Director of ORR, among others, that “there was no policy 20 that would result in the separation of children and parent,” and that, accordingly, the 21
22

---

23 <sup>10</sup> Fernando Stein & Karen Remley, Am. Acad. of Pediatrics, AAP Statement Opposing 24 Separation of Mothers and Children at the Border (Mar. 4, 2017),
25 <https://perma.cc/AZ5Q-TN38>.

26 <sup>11</sup> Daniella Diaz, Kelly: DHS is considering separating undocumented children from their 27 parents at the border, CNN (Mar. 7, 2017), <https://perma.cc/L4Q9-KVAW>.

28 <sup>12</sup> Brooke Singman, Kelly Says Full-scale Border Wall ‘Unlikely,’ Clarifies Position on Family Detentions, FOX NEWS (Apr. 5, 2017), <https://perma.cc/RAE5-7N85>.

1 UAC program need not plan for continued increases in children classified as 2 unaccompanied as a result of being separated from their parents.<sup>13</sup>

3 2. After Piloting Family Separation in 2017, the United States
 4 Launches a Full-Scale Policy of Separating Parents from Their
 5 Minor Children in April 2018

6 45. Despite Secretary Kelly's public assurance to Congress in April 2017 that 7 families crossing the border would be separated only in specific circumstances for the 8 welfare of the child, the government covertly began instituting a general policy of 9 widespread separation of families who crossed the southern border. It did so knowing the 10 separations would cause harm and intending to leverage that harm to deter future
 11 immigrants from seeking to enter the United States.

12 46. Between July and November 2017, a pilot program of family separation 13 began in CBP's El Paso sector.<sup>14</sup> Under the program, the government prioritized the 14 prosecution of the misdemeanor charge of improper entry, including the prosecution of 15 parents who crossed the border into the United States with young children. It detained
 16 parents as criminals, and forcibly took their children away. DHS re-classified the children
 17 as unaccompanied minors and placed them in the custody of ORR.<sup>15</sup> The government did

---

18 <sup>13</sup> House of Representatives, Subcommittee on Oversight and Investigations, Committee
 19 on Energy and Commerce Hearing (Feb. 7, 2019), Unofficial transcript, available at 20 <https://perma.cc/F2EV-ZS9W> 1012-1024; 1131-1138; 2058-2064 (testimony of 21 Commander Jonathan White, U.S. Public Health Service Commissioned Corps, U.S.
 22 Department of Health and Human Services).

23 <sup>14</sup> OFFICE OF THE INSPECTOR GENERAL, U.S. DEP'T OF HEALTH & HUMAN 24 SERVS., OEI-BL-18-00511, SEPARATED CHILDREN PLACED IN OFFICE OF 25 REFUGEE RESETTLEMENT CARE 3 (Jan. 17, 2019), available at 26 <https://perma.cc/2XX7-GBYR> [hereinafter HHS OIG REPORT I] ("From July through 27 November 2017, the El Paso sector of Customs and Border Protection (CBP), an agency 28 within DHS, implemented new policies that resulted in 281 individuals in families being separated.").

<sup>15</sup> See, e.g., United States v. Dominguez-Portillo, No. 17-MJ-4409, 2018 WL 315759, at *1 (W.D. Tex. Jan. 5, 2018), aff'd sub nom. United States v. Vasquez-Hernandez, 314 F.
 Supp. 3d 744 (W.D. Tex. 2018), aff'd, 924 F.3d 164 (5th Cir. 2019).

1 not reunify the parents following the completion of any misdemeanor criminal sentence.
2 CBP separated approximately 280 families during the El Paso program.

3 47. Because the unaccompanied minors who typically arrived at ORR prior to 4 2017 had arrived at the border genuinely unaccompanied by a parent or guardian, ORR
5 did not have any formal means of noting that children artificially classified as 6 unaccompanied by CBP in fact had parents in DHS custody, nor of tracking the 7 whereabouts of those parents. As a result, some staff began to informally track such 8 relationships upon learning of them during a child's intake interview.<sup>16</sup>

9 48. By late 2017, the government was separating families along the length of 10 the U.S.-Mexico border, including families arriving through official ports of entry.
11 Notwithstanding the alarm bells raised by many within ORR that it lacked the systems 12 needed to handle the steady increase in children who had been separated from their 13 parents and re-classified as unaccompanied, DHS discouraged HHS from taking steps to 14 formalize and better prepare for continued increases.<sup>17</sup>

15 49. On December 16, 2017, senior DOJ and DHS officials jointly prepared and 16 reviewed a memorandum titled "Policy Options to Respond to Border Surge of Illegal 17 Immigration."<sup>18</sup> The first section of this memorandum, titled "Increase Prosecution of 18 Family Unit Parents," suggests action to "[i]nstruct CBP and ICE to work with DOJ to 19 significantly increase the prosecution of family unit parents when they are encountered at

20 _____
21 <sup>16</sup> HHS OIG REPORT I at 6.

22 <sup>17</sup> See House of Representatives, Subcommittee on Oversight and Investigations,
23 Committee on Energy and Commerce Hearing (Feb. 7, 2019), Unofficial transcript, 24 available at <https://perma.cc/F2EV-ZS9W> 1012-1024; 1131-1138; 2058-2064 (testimony of Commander Jonathan White, U.S. Public Health Service Commissioned Corps, U.S.
Department of Health and Human Services).

25 <sup>18</sup> Policy Options to Respond to Border Surge of Illegal Immigration,
26 <https://perma.cc/7KRZ-PXW7>; see Anne Flaherty & Quinn Owen, Leaked Memo Shows
27 Trump Administration Weighed Separating Families at Border, Sen. Merkley Wants
28 Nielsen Investigated for Perjury, ABC NEWS (Jan. 18, 2019), <https://perma.cc/6SVC-9Q3D>.

1 the border,” nothing that “[t]he parents would be prosecuted for illegal entry
2 (misdemeanor) or illegal reentry (felony) and the minors present with them would be
3 placed in HHS custody as UACs.”

4 50. The memorandum’s second section, titled “Separate Family Units,” 5 suggests “[a]nnounc[ing] that DHS is considering separating family units, placing the 6 adults in adult detention, and placing the minors under the age of 18 in the custody of 7 HHS as unaccompanied alien children (UACs),” and concludes, “[o]nce legal 8 coordination between DHS, HHS, and DOJ is complete, begin separating family units, as 9 stated above.”

10 51. On April 6, 2018, the U.S. Attorney General announced a “Zero Tolerance 11 Policy,” extending the practices of criminal prosecution and family separation tested in 12 the El Paso pilot program to the entirety of the southern border. The Zero Tolerance 13 Policy “fundamentally changed DHS’ approach to immigration enforcement,” which,
14 until 2017, did not separate a child from an accompanying adult except in very limited
15 circumstances, such as where CBP determined that the adult was not the child’s parent or 16 guardian or the adult posed a danger to the child.<sup>19</sup>

17 52. In early May 2018, CBP estimated to the Office of Management and 18 Budget (“OMB”) that it would separate more than 26,000 children from May through 19 September 2018 because of the Zero Tolerance Policy.<sup>20</sup>

20 53. Several aspects of the Zero Tolerance Policy and officials’ comments on it 21 confirm that the Policy’s goal was to harm families through forcible separation in an 22

---

23 <sup>19</sup> See, e.g., OFF. OF INSPECTOR GEN., U.S. DEP’T OF HOMELAND SEC., OIG-18-84, 24 SPECIAL REVIEW - INITIAL OBSERVATIONS REGARDING FAMILY SEPARATION ISSUES
25 UNDER THE ZERO TOLERANCE POLICY 2 (2018), available at [https://perma.cc/4E35-
DQR5](https://perma.cc/4E35-DQR5) [hereinafter DHS OIG REPORT I].

26 <sup>20</sup> OFFICE OF THE INSPECTOR GENERAL, U.S. DEP’T OF HOMELAND SEC., 27 OEI-09-18-00431, DHS LACKED TECHNOLOGY NEEDED TO SUCCESSFULLY
28 ACCOUNT FOR SEPARATED MIGRANT FAMILIES 17 (Nov. 2019), available at <https://perma.cc/GY3G-F8TG> [hereinafter DHS OIG REPORT II].

1 effort to deter future immigrants from seeking entry to the United States, and that
2 prosecution of underlying criminal offenses of improper entry was pretextual.

3 54. For example, the December 2017 joint DOJ and DHS memorandum noted 4 that the “prosecution of family units” and “separat[ion] [of] family units” “would be 5 reported by media and . . . have substantial deterrent effect” on future migration.<sup>21</sup>

6 55. On May 11, 2018, John Kelly, President Trump’s then-Chief of Staff, stated
7 on NPR that “a big name of the game is deterrence . . . . It could be a tough deterrent —
8 would be a tough deterrent.”<sup>22</sup> He added, “[t]he children will be taken care of — put into 9 foster care or whatever.”<sup>23</sup>

10 56. On June 19, 2018, Steve Wagner, Assistant Secretary of HHS said, “[w]e 11 expect that the new policy will result in a deterrence effect . . . .”<sup>24</sup>

12 57. While the government claimed that it separated families only when the 13 parents were referred for improper entry prosecution, it also separated many families who 14 presented at official ports of entry seeking asylum and were not subject to prosecution.<sup>25</sup>

---

17 <sup>21</sup> Policy Options to Respond to Border Surge of Illegal Immigration,
18 <https://perma.cc/7KRZ-PXW7>; see Anne Flaherty & Quinn Owen, Leaked Memo Shows
19 Trump Administration Weighed Separating Families at Border, Sen. Merkley Wants
20 Nielsen Investigated for Perjury, ABC NEWS (Jan. 18, 2019), https://perma.cc/6SVC-

21 9Q3D.
22 <sup>22</sup> Transcript: White House Chief of Staff John Kelly’s Interview with NPR, NPR (May 11, 2018), <https://perma.cc/ZN5N-VN5R>.

23 <sup>23</sup> Id. (emphasis added).

24 <sup>24</sup> Philip Bump, Here Are the Administration Officials Who Have Said that Family
25 Separation Is Meant as a Deterrent, WASH. POST, June 19, 2018, https://perma.cc/LTB8-

26 878Y.
27 <sup>25</sup> See Ms. L. v. U.S. Immigration & Customs Enforcement, 310 F. Supp. 3d 1133, 1143
28 (S.D. Cal. 2018) (“[T]he practice of family separation was occurring before the zero tolerance policy was announced, and that practice has resulted in the casual, if not deliberate, separation of families that lawfully present at the port of entry, not just those who cross into the country illegally.”).

1           58.    The government also separated families who crossed the border between 2 ports of entry when the parents were not criminally charged.

3           59.    When the government prosecuted parents for misdemeanor improper entry,
4 the typical sentence was 48 hours or less of “time served.” Rather than reunifying the 5 parents with their children after the completion of the misdemeanor sentence, the 6 government sent their children to far-flung ORR facilities, sometimes thousands of miles
7 away.

8           60.    Although the government claimed that it applied the “Zero Tolerance”
9 prosecutions evenhandedly, CBP targeted parents arriving with their children over single 10 adults when making criminal referrals to DOJ.<sup>26</sup>

11           61.    During six weeks at the height of the Zero Tolerance period, between 12 May 7, 2018 and June 20, 2018, the government separated at least 2,231 children from 13 their parents.<sup>27</sup>

14           62.    A DHS directive, issued on June 23, 2018, suggested that once families 15 were separated, only parents who were subject to removal would be reunited with their 16 children, and only “for the purposes of removal.”<sup>28</sup> This directive imposed an impossible
17 choice on parents: They had to choose between seeing their children again or continuing 18 to seek asylum in the United States. The Administration would not allow them to do 19 both.

20           63.    In response to intense public backlash against the policy, on June 20, 2018,
21 President Trump issued an executive order purporting to end the policy of family
22
23

24 _____
25 <sup>26</sup> See TRAC Immigration, Syracuse University, “Zero Tolerance” at the Border:
Rhetoric vs. Reality, available at <https://perma.cc/EK2Q-CJ7G> (July 24, 2018).

26 <sup>27</sup> House Oversight Staff Report (Jul. 2019), available at <https://perma.cc/ZE5H-9FJZ>.

27 <sup>28</sup> Fact Sheet: Zero-Tolerance Prosecution and Family Reunification, U.S. DEP’T OF 28 HOMELAND SEC. (June 23, 2018), <https://perma.cc/4X33-8C8D>.

1 separation. Exec. Order No. 13841, Affording Congress an Opportunity to Address
2 Family Separations (Fed. Register at 83 FR 29,435, June 25, 2018).

3 64. On June 26, 2018, Judge Sabraw of the U.S. District Court for the Southern 4 District of California issued a preliminary injunction prohibiting the government from 5 separating parents from their children absent a finding of parental unfitness or danger to 6 the child. He ordered the government to reunify children under age five within fourteen
7 days and children age five and older with their parents within thirty days of the order.<sup>29</sup>

8 65. The President of the United States continued to openly discuss the 9 deterrence rationale for pursuing the family separation policy well after the Zero
10 Tolerance aspect of the policy was officially ended, declaring in December 2018 that “[I]f
11 you don’t separate, FAR more people will come.”<sup>30</sup>

12 B. The United States Forcibly Separated Abel and Obet

13 1. Abel and Obet Seek Asylum in the United States

14 66. Abel and Obet came to the United States fleeing persecution in Guatemala
15 and seeking medical care for Obet’s heart and chest conditions.

16 67. Abel and Obet are of the indigenous Q’anjob’al tribe. While in Guatemala, 17 the family faced violent persecution, including attempted murder because of their 18 indigenous background and Abel’s environmental advocacy.

19 68. When Obet was six, his family learned he had only a year to live unless he 20 underwent major heart surgery. With the support of a charitable organization, Obet had 21 the surgery in Guatemala City, which involved cutting through his back to place a metal
22

---

23
24 <sup>29</sup> Ms. L., 310 F. Supp. 3d at 1146, 1149.

25 <sup>30</sup> See Donald J. Trump (@realDonaldTrump), TWITTER (Dec. 16, 2018, 8:25 AM),
26 <https://perma.cc/4EMP-JC34>; see also Fox News, Interview: Maria Bartiromo Interviews
27 Donald Trump on Fox Sunday Morning Futures (Apr. 28, 2019), 28 <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=hvUc7ONNTp4> at 1:32-2:21; Kimberly Kindy et al.,
Trump says ending family separation practice was a ‘disaster’ that led to surge in border crossings, WASH. POST (Apr. 28, 2019), 2019 WLNR 13234400.

1 clip in one of his heart valves. The surgeons told Abel that Obet needed regular check-
2 ups with a cardiologist to ensure his survival—something Abel knew was nearly 3 impossible given their income and the lack of access to cardiologists in Guatemala.

4 69. Facing persecution in their village and Obet’s health condition, Abel made
5 the difficult decision to flee to the United States.

6 70. The two-week journey from Guatemala to northern Mexico taxed Obet’s
7 body. After the surgery, Obet had developed a chest condition. His lungs and throat
8 would sometimes become blocked by thick mucus, and he would choke and wheeze.
9 Coughing also caused Obet great pain because of his wounds from the surgery. Obet’s
10 surgeon had said Obet could choke on his mucus and instructed Abel on the Heimlich
11 maneuver. Sometimes, Obet was too weak to cough and clear his congestion. Abel
12 worried Obet could choke to death.

13 71. On the journey, Abel realized Obet’s condition worsened when he was cold, 14 so Abel covered him with his sweater and a small blanket and held him close.

15 72. Abel and then seven-year-old Obet reached Arizona around May 15, 2018.

16 73. Abel reached and crossed the U.S. border. He walked for hours carrying 17 Obet, who was wheezing and choking. Around 2:00 A.M., it was too cold to continue.
18 Abel stopped and built a small fire to warm Obet and to signal Border Patrol so that he 19 could ask for asylum.

20 2. Abel and Obet Are Taken into Custody by CBP

21 74. A single Border Patrol agent soon found them. Abel felt relieved but was 22 soon terrified. Whereas Abel is 5 feet 3 inches tall, the agent was much taller, had a gun,
23 and seemed enraged. He screamed, calling the father and small child pendejos, jodidos
24 animales (“stupid, fucking animals”).<sup>31</sup>

---

25
26
27 <sup>31</sup> This exchange, and any other exchange described herein unless otherwise noted, took 28 place in Spanish.

1           75.     With his hand on his gun, the agent demanded Abel explain “why you came
2 to my country.” Terrified, Abel kept his head down, held Obet, and did not speak.
3 Eventually Abel tried to explain that he was fleeing his home country and that his son had 4 a severe medical condition. Though the agent spoke Spanish, he did not acknowledge 5 anything Abel said.

6           76.     The agent put them in the back of a covered truck with the air conditioning
7 on. Abel held Obet, but they could not get warm. They were in the truck for about three 8 hours.

9           77.     At the Border Patrol station, several agents worked in a single office. The 10 agents made Abel and Obet sit on the floor with several other families.

11           78.     With urgency, Abel asked for help for Obet, but the agents told him he was 12 not allowed to speak. He tried to stand up but was ordered to sit back down and stay still.

13           79.     Afterward, an officer sat Abel and Obet down to ask Abel questions. This 14 agent spoke Spanish proficiently. Abel gave the agent paperwork verifying his identity
15 and relationship to his son, as well as evidence of Obet’s medical condition, but the agent
16 would not listen to his pleas for medical care for Obet. The agent aggressively asked 17 Abel “what you came to do in this country.” Abel told him they were seeking asylum.
18 He also told the agent, “my son had a heart surgery a few months ago, is very sick, and 19 can barely breathe.”

20           80.     The agent told Abel he “did not care,” and that he and Obet should not have 21 come to “my country” because “you do not belong here.” Abel tried to show the agent
22 Obet’s surgery scars and insisted that Obet needed medical help. Abel began to cry.
23 Obet started crying too. The agent continued to ignore both of them, staring at his 24 computer.

25           81.     The agent put Abel and Obet into a small cell with more than twenty 26 parents and children. Abel again asked for medical attention for Obet, but the agent 27 ignored him.

28

1           82.    The cell had concrete floors and walls and a single bench. Cold air blasted
2 from vents. It was so cold that Abel and others called it the “hielera,” meaning “icebox.”
3 There was no space to lie down, so Abel sat with Obet in his lap. They were both 4 freezing.

5           83.    After a few hours, Obet complained of chest pain. Abel went to the cell
6 door to seek attention. When an agent walked by, Abel knocked on the door and asked 7 for help.

8           84.    The agent opened the door, and Abel again explained his son needed
9 medical attention. The agent’s response was to take Obet’s sweater because it was 10 contraband.

11          85.    Abel asked several more times for medical attention for Obet to no avail.
12 The agents ignored his pleas, and their only reaction was to order him to sit down.

13          86.    The agents began threatening not to give Abel his “next Maruchan” if Abel
14 kept talking to them. Every twelve hours, agents provided the families with a single 15 Maruchan Ramen soup for adults and one cookie and small juice box for each child.
16 Abel and Obet remained hungry after eating these meager rations. Because they were so 17 hungry, Abel stopped asking for medical help as frequently. He feared losing what little 18 food they were given.

19          87.    Abel and Obet spent more time in the cell, crammed in with many other 20 people, freezing, hungry, and exhausted. There were several kids who appeared sick and 21 were consistently coughing. Abel worried the children were contagious and spreading 22 germs.

23          88.    The hielera was so full that there was no space to sleep and barely any to 24 sit. It was difficult to tell how many days passed; there were no windows and the lights 25 were kept on at all times.

26          89.    Abel and Obet were freezing and had no blankets. Some families had thin
27 foil sheets, but Abel and Obet were not provided any. After the first day in the hielera, 28 Abel found a small piece of foil another family had left. He tried to cover Obet with it,

1 but the sheet disintegrated and fell off, and the pieces of foil got into Obet's mouth and 2 eyes, exacerbating his condition.

3 90. Obet's health got progressively worse. He was cold, hungry, afraid, and 4 crying constantly. Abel told stories about dragons to distract him. If Abel expressed any 5 discomfort, Obet became inconsolable. And so Abel, despite his own feelings, tried to 6 appear calm.

7 91. After some time without medical care, Obet developed a greenish hue to his 8 skin. Despite the agents' threats to withhold food, Abel again asked for medical attention 9 and was ignored.

10 92. At one point, Obet began severely choking, and Abel gave him the 11 Heimlich maneuver, dislodging mucus blocking his airway. Only then did agents bring 12 them to a hospital.

13 93. The doctor who saw Obet did not speak Spanish, so Abel did not follow
14 much of what happened. He later learned Obet was diagnosed with an acute respiratory 15 infection.

16 94. After the hospital, Abel and Obet were placed back in the same freezing
17 cell, despite Abel's attempts to explain that the cold made Obet's condition worse.

18 3. The United States Takes Obet from Abel

19 95. On or around their second day in the cell, Abel and Obet witnessed a 20 horrifying scene. An agent much larger than anyone in the cell, with a gun in his holster,
21 called a father and son to the door and told the father to give up his son. When the father 22 refused, the agent grabbed the man by his neck and shoved him back into the cell,
23 forcibly grabbing and taking his small son. The child was led away desperately crying
24 and screaming, "Daddy, I do not want him to take me!"

25 96. Seeing this, Obet started screaming and crying. Other children also began
26 to cry in fear. Panicked, Obet asked his father, "Are they going to do that to us?" Abel 27 tried to calm his son and said no, but Obet wailed, "Do not lie to me, they are going to 28 take me!"

1           97. Abel and Obet then witnessed other children being taken by force from 2 their parents. Abel became terrified that if Obet were taken by force, he could hurt his
3 surgery wounds. Abel explained this to Obet and coached him not to struggle. Obet
4 refused to agree to be taken willingly. Despite feeling a sense of dread he had never 5 before experienced, Abel tried to be calm and told Obet that everything was going to be 6 okay.

7           98. When the moment came, Abel had Obet in his arms. Three armed agents
8 came into the cell and told Abel to put his son down. Abel asked to speak with an officer
9 about Obet's health. The agent said no. Abel then requested a few seconds to hug Obet,
10 but the officer demanded he give up his son. They trembled with fear and clutched each 11 other.

12           99. The agents yelled threateningly that Abel needed to obey and put Obet
13 down. More agents approached, and they forcibly wrenched Obet out of Abel's arms.
14 Abel and Obet kept holding hands. The agents ripped their hands apart and took Obet 15 away.

16           100. Obet looked back at Abel, screaming, almost fainting, as he was taken
17 away. Abel saw a fear on his son's face that he will never forget, and he knows his son
18 saw that same fear on Abel's face. His son screamed and cried, "Daddy, why are you 19 letting them take me?"

20           101. Abel tried to follow the agents out of the cell to comfort Obet, but the 21 agents forced him to stay in the cell. Abel cried for his son, feeling "totally destroyed."

22           4. Abel and Obet Are Lost to Each Other for Weeks

23           102. Agents took Abel out of the hielera and led him to a different room. This 24 room had approximately seventy adults. It was so crowded that Abel felt he could not 25 breathe. There was no bathroom, and the room stank of urine and bodies. The smell was 26 nauseating. There was no space to lie down or even sit. People often fainted and an 27 agent would take them away.

28

1           103. Abel was held here for approximately 10 days. He stood in a corner most
2 of this time. He received just one Maruchan Ramen every twelve hours and felt constant
3 hunger. But Abel's extreme physical discomfort paled in comparison to the terror of 4 losing his young, frail son.

5           104. Abel was distraught. He thought his son had been taken away permanently,
6 and he was terrified that the officers did not know of or did not care about Obet's medical 7 condition. If his son started choking, who would help? Would he get to see a 8 cardiologist? He felt he would never see his son again. Abel had suicidal thoughts 9 during this time.

10           105. The agents provided no explanation for why they had taken Obet or what 11 would happen to him. Not knowing any information—or even if his son was alive—
12 tortured Abel. Over nearly three months, Abel would never receive any explanation from 13 any government agent.

14           106. About ten days after taking Obet away, agents put chains on Abel's wrists,
15 waist, and ankles. They boarded him on a bus and then a plane to a different detention 16 center.

17           107. Upon information and belief, Abel was never charged with any criminal 18 offense.

19           108. Abel was transferred like this multiple times to detention facilities in 20 Arizona, Georgia, and Texas, with no explanation or notice. Based on ICE records and 21 on information and belief, it appears that Abel was held for various amounts of time in at 22 least the following facilities: a CBP facility near San Luis, Arizona; Folkston ICE
23 Processing Center in Folkston, Georgia; Stewart Detention Center in Lumpkin, Georgia; 24 and Port Isabel Detention Center in Los Fresnos, Texas. At each new facility, Abel was 25 initially held in a hielera for many hours and then transferred to a cell. Every time, Abel 26 tried to ask about Obet he was either ignored or told he did not have the right to speak to 27 the agents.

28

1           109. During his time in CBP and ICE detention, other detained parents who had
2 been separated from their children told Abel about a phone number he could call to try to 3 speak with Obet. He tried calling it collect almost daily, but the calls did not go through.
4 During all of this time, Abel's pain, hunger, and discomfort remained in the background.
5 His fear for Obet's safety and well-being dominated his mind.

6           110. Abel was consistently ignored by ICE agents. He begged one officer to be 7 put in touch with his son, and told the officer that his son was very sick. The officer
8 responded, "We know nothing about your case, much less your family."

9           111. Later, other officers told Abel and other fathers that the government had 10 taken away their kids for good and that they would be deported without their children.
11 Being told that he had lost his son forever caused Abel grave terror and anguish. Abel 12 again had suicidal thoughts.

13           112. Other parents suffered as Abel did, and many eventually "drove themselves 14 mad with sadness, regret, and fear." There was a desperation that permeated the 15 detainees. Abel succumbed to constant agony and "feeling dead." He lost hope of ever 16 being with his son again.

17           113. Approximately a month and a half after Obet was taken, Abel and several 18 other detainees were brought to a large room to "sign some papers." The ICE agents in 19 the room gave the detainees papers in English and refused to explain what they meant.

20           114. Abel walked up to an ICE officer to ask what happened to his son and what 21 the paper was. The ICE officer yelled at Abel, refused to answer, and told him to go sit 22 down. Demoralized, Abel did not say another word. ICE told the detainees that if they 23 did not sign these forms, there would be "problems with ICE." Abel felt obligated to sign 24 and did so.

25           115. The English language form that ICE coerced Abel into signing was titled 26 "Separated Parent's Removal Form." It had his information and that of Obet pre-27 populated at the top and referenced the Ms. L. litigation. The form provided only two 28 options: reunification with children for purposes of joint removal, or removal without

1 one's children, where the children would remain in the United States alone to pursue their
2 independent immigration cases. The form did not allow parents to choose reunification
3 with their children in the United States to pursue their immigration cases together.

4 116. Around two weeks later, ICE agents brought Abel another paper, this time
5 with a Spanish translation, that included the option of being deported with Obet or 6 relinquishing his son and being deported alone. Abel recalls signing this form to indicate 7 that he wanted to be with his son.

8 5. After About Fifty Days Apart, Abel and Obet Are Finally 9 Allowed to Speak—Once

10 117. About fifty days after Obet was taken, in or around early July 2018,
11 advocates visited Abel's detention center. Abel met with them and explained that his ill 12 son had been taken away and that he desperately wanted more information. The 13 advocates talked to ICE, and later ICE let Abel call Obet.

14 118. On or about July 7, 2018, Abel and several others were put in a line and 15 given approximately ten minutes each to talk to their children in front of everyone else.
16 While waiting, one father did not stand in line correctly, and an ICE officer yelled and 17 threatened to hurt him.

18 119. Eventually it was Abel's turn. When Obet answered, Abel had no words.
19 He could only cry. He says of that moment, "My life returned to me when I heard his 20 voice."

21 120. Abel and Obet cried, neither able to speak. But, knowing their time was 22 limited, they tried to catch up quickly. Obet told Abel he had talked with his mother in 23 Guatemala. He told Abel he rode on a train, had gotten lost on the train, and went on a 24 plane. Obet told his father that his heart hurt and that he felt pain at night. Then their 25 time was up. Abel had to say goodbye. He told Obet to be strong and that they would 26 see each other soon.

27 121. After the call, Abel became even more worried about Obet's health.
28

1           122. This was the only time, in approximately seventy days of detention, that the 2 government allowed father and son to speak to each other.

3           123. Although Abel asked, he was unable to place any other calls to his son
4 because he could not pay for them.

5                   6. Abel Learns Obet Was Sexually Abused While in the Custody of 6                   the United States

7           124. Advocates who visited the Folkston, Georgia ICE detention center helped 8 Abel contact his wife in Guatemala and his brother in California. Abel had no money to 9 place calls, but his wife and brother set up accounts so that they could receive collect
10 calls from Abel.

11           125. Thereafter, Abel spoke with his wife, who had been able to speak with Obet 12 on the phone. Abel learned something that broke him all over again: after Obet had been 13 taken away from Abel, Obet had been sexually abused in a foster home in New York.

14           126. When Abel learned this, he felt hysterical and powerless. His mind raced 15 with questions: “Why couldn’t the government protect my son? Why couldn’t the 16 government tell me what was going on and help? The laws of the United States were 17 supposed to protect us, but why did everything turn out the reverse?” Abel had self-18 destructive thoughts. Knowing that his son had been victimized, he felt terrorized by 19 guilt and pain. He felt like a bad father.

20           127. After learning about his son’s sexual abuse, Abel increased his efforts to 21 ask ICE for information about his son. Still, no officers paid attention to Abel’s requests.

22           128. In early July, Abel saw on television a Univision report on a policy called 23 “Zero Tolerance.” A court had ordered the government to reunite children and parents it 24 had separated. Abel and other detainees crowded around the television. As soon as the 25 ICE officer noticed this, he changed the channel. This was the first time Abel understood 26 why his son had been taken from him.

1           129. On June 26, 2018, Judge Sabraw issued the preliminary injunction in the 2 Ms. L. case and ordered the government to reunite the families like Abel and Obet, within 3 thirty days.<sup>32</sup>

4                   7. After Approximately Seventy Days, Father and Son Are
5                   Reunited

6           130. Several weeks later, on or about July 25, 2018, Abel and several other
7 fathers were put in chains and transferred to Port Isabel, Texas, again with no
8 explanation. When Abel arrived, he noticed a mother walking with a child. He felt a 9 glimmer of hope but tried to temper his optimism. He was scared to even hope to see his 10 son again.

11           131. As time passed, he watched as other fathers were reunited with their 12 children and released, but he was passed over and given no explanation why.

13           132. A few days later, officers returned Abel's clothes to him, brought him and 14 about thirty other fathers to a room, and took off their chains. The fathers waited.
15 Sometime later, the door opened, and children walked in, disoriented, crying, and frantic.
16 Abel finally let himself have hope and was overcome with emotion. Abel then spotted 17 Obet, fearful and crying.

18           133. Obet looked at Abel but did not recognize him.

19           134. Crying, Abel called his son's name. Obet looked at him again, still 20 unrecognizing, but walked slowly toward him. Obet then jumped into his father's 21 embrace. They both sobbed and hugged each other for several minutes. Overcome with 22 grief, they were at first unable to speak. Abel felt deep sorrow that his son had endured 23 terrible suffering.

24           135. Obet began to say over and over, "Daddy, don't let them take me away 25 again. Daddy, we have to leave right now so they don't take us again." Clutching his 26

27 _____
28 <sup>32</sup> Ms. L., 310 F. Supp. 3d at 1149.

1 son, Abel told Obet that everything had only been a bad dream, and that they would not
2 be separated again.

3 136. Abel and Obet were detained for two more days together. During those 4 days, Obet clung to Abel and reacted in panic whenever an ICE agent approached. Obet
5 asked repeatedly when they could leave and whether the agents were going to take him
6 away again, and Abel reassured Obet each time that they were not going to be separated
7 again.

8 137. Around July 27, 2018, approximately ten weeks after Abel and Obet were 9 forcibly separated from each other, they were released together.

10 138. The release occurred with no notice to Abel, Abel's and Obet's counsel, or 11 Abel's brother in California, who was Abel and Obet's sponsor. As a result, they had no
12 money and nowhere to go when released. They sought refuge in a Catholic Charities
13 shelter in Texas until Abel's brother could arrange for their travel to California.

14 139. After being reunited, Abel learned some of what his son suffered through,
15 but he laments that he will "never know everything that happened," both because his son
16 is too young to explain everything, and because it upsets Obet to talk about the subject, so 17 Abel avoids it.

18 140. Abel learned most of what happened to Obet through paperwork from 19 ORR, but that paperwork was often inaccurate and incomplete.

20 8. Obet Suffered Clinical Trauma from the Separation from His 21 Father and Sexual Abuse in U.S. Government Custody

22 141. After he was taken from his father, Obet was sent to New York and placed 23 in an institution operated by a government contractor, Cayuga Centers. Obet spent the 24 days at the Center and spent nights at a foster home with several other children.

25 142. ORR records reflect that, on various nights, children climbed into Obet's
26 bed and touched his penis, buttocks, and chest. In reality, the sexual abuse went beyond 27 external touching and was much more severe.

28

1           143. Obet told the foster adult what happened each time, and the adult told the 2 kids to go back to their beds each time. Still, the sexual abuse persisted.

3           144. When Obet reported the abuse to a counselor, who reported it to the foster
4 adults and the New York Police Department (“NYPD”), the foster parent claimed no 5 knowledge.

6           145. Obet’s mental health deteriorated in the face of the emotional harm the 7 government inflicted upon him by forcibly separating him from his father and exposing 8 him to sexual abuse. His suffering was registered in several assessments of his mental 9 health, even if the individuals evaluating him all but ignored the government-inflicted 10 sources of trauma.

11           146. On June 13, 2018, ORR evaluated Obet for trauma using an analytical form 12 for children and adolescents. Fifteen points or higher on the evaluation is defined as 13 “clinical” trauma. Obet registered thirty-six points. Obet indicated on the form that 14 someone close to him had suddenly or violently passed away. The evaluation stated that 15 Obet “almost always” had nightmares and disturbing thoughts or images in his mind
16 about “what happened.” It also stated that Obet had negative thoughts about himself or 17 others, thoughts like “I will not have a good life,” “I can’t trust anyone,” and “the world 18 is unsafe.”

19           147. A Cayuga Canters counselor in New York also found Obet was exhibiting 20 symptoms of PTSD. Obet told the counselor that he prayed for his father, whom he 21 missed very much. Obet described almost always feeling hyper-vigilant and suffering
22 from flashbacks and nightmares. He reported feelings of guilt, isolation, and disinterest.

23           148. On June 28, 2018, Obet disclosed to a Cayuga worker that he was being 24 sexually abused in his foster home. Obet was placed in a new foster home the same day.
25 The next day, June 29, 2018, NYPD officers visited the new home to interview him.
26 However, Obet was asleep. The NYPD scheduled a date for the interview with Obet, 27 July 26, 2018, and instructed that Obet was not to leave the state before then.

28

1           149. But the day before the scheduled NYPD interview, on July 25, 2018, the 2 government transported Obet to Port Isabel Detention Facility in Texas. The transfer
3 occurred without notifying NYPD or allowing them to conduct Obet’s interview.

4           150. One week later, the NYPD Special Victims Unit recommended closing the 5 investigation into the sexual abuse of Obet. A police report indicates “all leads [were]
6 exhausted” because Obet had left New York before the scheduled interview, and Cayuga
7 Centers “does not have any forwarding information to contact the child or his father.”

8           151. Obet was unable to talk to his mother about the sexual abuse for over two 9 weeks and was not able to tell his father until they were reunited.

10                   9. Abel and Obet Continue to Suffer After Being Reunited

11           152. In the weeks after their reunification, Obet blamed Abel for the separation, 12 asking why Abel let the officers take Obet away. He asked, “If you are my Daddy, why 13 didn’t you do anything? Why didn’t you defend me?” Abel explained it was the law and 14 there was nothing he could do. Eventually Obet stopped asking. It caused Abel deep 15 pain that his son felt this way.

16           153. Abel could not leave Obet’s side without Obet becoming terrified, crying, 17 and begging his father not to leave him.

18           154. Obet told his father that every night he had been alone, he thought about his 19 father and asked God to let him have his father back. He also said he asked every day 20 “where his Daddy is,” and “when is he coming,” but the adults just told Obet he had to 21 wait.

22           155. Obet said that he felt sick throughout the separation and went to a doctor 23 once.

24           156. Abel has noticed that Obet is traumatized and his behavior has changed.

25           157. Whereas before he was a happy and adjusted child, outgoing, friendly, and 26 trusting of adults, he is now hyper-vigilant, withdrawn, and often sad.

27
28

1           158. Obet's emotions sometimes change quickly and without warning; he can go
2 from being happy to deeply sad, or from being sad to angry. Obet has tantrums for no
3 apparent reason and one time became aggressive with Abel and tried to hit him.

4           159. Obet has nightmares and wakes up crying, calling, and reaching for his 5 father.

6           160. Obet often expresses fear that Abel will be taken and deported without 7 Obet.

8           161. Obet sometimes says that he feels that he has no family. Abel tries to 9 explain that he has his father and mother, but Obet seems stuck on the thought that he has 10 no one.

11           162. Obet is terrified of any adult that appears to be a law enforcement officer, 12 including security guards, and grabs onto his father's hand in fear if he sees someone in 13 uniform. For fear of triggering Obet if they see someone in uniform, Abel rarely takes 14 him out in public except when they go to and from Obet's cardiologist appointments and 15 Obet's elementary school, where he is in the third grade.

16           163. Obet avoids discussing what occurred during his separation from his father,
17 including his time at Cayuga and the abuse incidents in foster care, and Abel tries to only 18 talk about happy subjects with Obet to avoid upsetting him.

19           164. Abel continues to suffer physical and emotional harm from the separation.
20 He tries to forget everything that happened but he cannot. Abel often feels sadness and 21 fear at random times. Sometimes Abel does not want to get out of bed in the morning 22 when he thinks of everything that happened.

23           165. Since being reunified with his son, Abel has experienced unrelenting, acute 24 headaches behind his eyes and along his temples when he becomes stressed, especially 25 when he thinks about his ever-present fear that immigration will separate him from his 26 son again and deport him without his son. Before the separation from his son, he never 27 had headaches as a response to stressful thoughts.

28

1           166. Abel and Obet resettled in Southern California, where they are pursuing
2 their immigration cases.

3           C. The United States Forcibly Separated José and Herlinda

4           1. José and Herlinda Seek Asylum in the United States and Are 5           Taken into CBP Custody

6           167. In late April 2018, José and Herlinda fled violence and extortion in their 7 home in Guatemala to seek asylum in the United States. Every night of their journey to 8 the United States, José held Herlinda — his only child — as they slept. Though the trip
9 was challenging, Herlinda remained in good spirits throughout and laughed often.

10          168. José and Herlinda reached the United States, near Yuma, Arizona, on or 11 about May 8, 2018. They encountered immigration officials shortly after crossing the 12 border. The agents placed José and Herlinda, along with a group of other migrants that 13 included several children, in a pickup truck, and then a van with benches, and transported 14 them to a CBP facility.

15          169. At the facility, immigration agents processed José and Herlinda. One agent 16 asked José if he had been watching the news and said, “You know what’s going to 17 happen, don’t you? We’re going to take the girl away and send her to a detention center 18 for minors and you’re going to be imprisoned.” José was alarmed. He hoped that what 19 the official had told him was not true, but he remained very anxious about what they were 20 going to do with him and Herlinda.

21          170. José and Herlinda spent their first approximately two days and nights in the 22 United States shivering on the concrete floor of the CBP facility crowded with other
23 migrant families. At this hielera, José and Herlinda were crowded into a “cage” — a 24 concrete space surrounded by fencing — with about thirty other people.

25          171. The facility had several more cages that held scores of additional migrants, 26 including many children. Each cage had just one bathroom for use by all those detained,
27 and the bathrooms had only half-doors. To use the bathroom, they had to walk over 28 people lying on the floor.

1           172. The agents denied the detainees showers, soap, and toothpaste. A trash can
2 in the cage was overflowing, and a foul smell emitted from the bathroom into the areas
3 where José, Herlinda, and the other migrants spent all day and all night. The lights were 4 always on, and there were no windows, making it difficult for José to know whether it
5 was day or night.

6           173. When they arrived at the facility, José and Herlinda had to hand over their 7 belongings to CBP agents. Although José had a few changes of clothes for Herlinda in a 8 backpack, he was not allowed to bring any of them into the cage, nor was he allowed to 9 take the sheet that he had packed for her to use on cold nights. Instead, the agents issued
10 José and Herlinda only thin aluminum sheets to shield themselves from the bitter 11 temperatures.

12           174. The sheets were flimsy and ripped after one night, so José collected pieces 13 of sheets left behind by others to try to keep Herlinda warm. In the cage where José and 14 Herlinda were held, there were no beds. The migrants, including children, were pressed 15 together on the floor. But the space was so cramped there was not enough room for every 16 person to lie down, so José sat up on the concrete bench. He mainly stayed awake, 17 watching over Herlinda, who slept on the floor, with only the thin aluminum sheet to 18 protect her against the freezing concrete.

19           175. The agents gave the families nothing to eat but undercooked instant ramen 20 noodle soup, and, for the children, some crackers and juice. The agents brought the 21 noodles in tepid water, and there was no hot water available to warm up the soup or cook
22 the noodles. It broke José's heart that he could only feed his daughter these undercooked 23 noodles. Herlinda told her father that she was hungry, but she was reluctant to eat the 24 undercooked noodle soup. She ate it three times during their first day in the hielera, but 25 by the second day, she would only take a bite and then refuse to eat the rest. Herlinda
26 asked why they could only eat the undercooked soup. José told her to be patient and tried 27 to reassure her that they would not be eating soup forever.

28

1           176. The water that came out of the sink at the hielera was foul-smelling and
2 foul-tasting. They spent twenty-four hours a day in the cage and were not permitted to go 3 outside.

4                   2. The United States Takes Herlinda from José

5           177. After about two days, agents called the name of one of the other detained
6 migrants and escorted him, along with his daughter, out of the cage. Only the father
7 returned to the cage. The father cried and explained that the agents had taken his 8 daughter away. Several others asked the father where they had taken his daughter. The 9 man could not answer.

10           178. At that moment, José realized that the threat the agent had made when José
11 and Herlinda first arrived was true—they really were taking children from their parents.
12 Still, José held out hope that they would not take very young children like Herlinda, who 13 was just five years old. But his hope was short-lived. An agent called José and Herlinda 14 out of the cage next.

15           179. José was filled with dread. After briefly questioning José, the official said, 16 echoing the threats that had been made when José first arrived, “We’re going to take the 17 girl away and send her to a detention center for minors. You’re going to be imprisoned.”

18           180. José was horrified at the thought of separation. He pleaded to the official 19 that his five-year-old daughter was too small to be taken from him and that he could not 20 leave her. The official only told him, “She can’t stay here longer; we’re going to send her 21 away.”

22           181. A different official, who José believed was a social worker, told José to 23 bathe Herlinda and change her clothes before she was taken. This official handed José 24 clothes and a pair of sandals that were far too big for Herlinda, and directed them to an 25 area with showers.

26           182. José bathed Herlinda and put her belongings (a few clothes and some 27 orthotic inserts from Guatemala) into a bag. José had about ten minutes to bathe Herlinda 28 and dress her.

1           183. Although José treasured the few remaining minutes that he had with 2 Herlinda, they were also intensely painful—he was in anguish about the impending
3 separation.

4           184. Through tears, José struggled to explain to his daughter what was 5 happening. He told her that the officials would take her somewhere else. He told her to 6 behave herself, to be strong, and to have patience—that he didn’t know exactly when 7 they would see each other again, but that he would never leave her. José reminded 8 Herlinda that God would protect them. While he attempted to maintain a strong face for 9 his daughter, José wondered if this was the last time he would see her. Herlinda did not 10 say anything, but José could tell she seemed worried.

11           185. After José bathed Herlinda, the officials told José, along with the parents of 12 about eight other children, to say goodbye to their children.

13           186. José thought of how innocent his daughter was and describes the moment 14 as one of the most painful in his life. He felt as if the officials were “taking half of [his] 15 life from [him].”

16           187. When the social worker approached Herlinda, she latched onto her dad, 17 screaming, “Papi, don’t leave me! Don’t let me go!” Herlinda, who had been upbeat and 18 smiled often on the journey from Guatemala, began crying uncontrollably. José 19 attempted to comfort her, telling her not to be sad because they would “only be apart for a 20 few moments.”

21           188. Agents ordered the children to line up on one side of the room, with the 22 parents across from them. The crying children lined up, wearing their government-issued 23 clothes.

24           189. José—standing with the other parents apart from their children—felt 25 powerless to stop the separation. The moment was excruciating for José and Herlinda.
26 Although Herlinda kept crying, José said with “all the pain in [his] heart [he] had to let 27 them take her.” The agents then led the children in a line out the door, while José and the 28

1 other parents stood there watching, not knowing when—or even if—they would ever see 2 their children again.

3 190. The officials took José and other parents back to the cages. José describes 4 the scene as being “like a funeral,” with grown men and women openly and 5 uncontrollably weeping. As soon as Herlinda was gone, José began crying. In anguish,
6 his mind went to the thought of being deported without his daughter. He did not know 7 whether he would see his daughter again.

8 3. José Is Kept in Detention After Separation and Has Limited
9 Contact with Herlinda

10 191. José wept every day of the next week that he was kept in the hielera after 11 Herlinda was taken. Left with no information about his daughter, José could not sleep.

12 192. The agents refused to tell him what would happen to him and his daughter.
13 Were they going to be deported? Would U.S. officials deport only José, leaving Herlinda
14 alone in the United States? What would happen to Herlinda? Overcome with confusion
15 and fear, José and the other separated parents in the hielera cried for their children.

16 193. José recalls comforting another father who could not stop thinking about 17 what could happen to his child. Although José reassured him that they would someday be 18 reunited with their children, privately he was deep in despair.

19 194. José and other parents constantly asked officials about their children but 20 were denied any information. Often, the officers would shut the door to silence the 21 parents’ pleas.

22 195. The detainees continued to eat nothing but the undercooked instant noodle 23 soup. Each time, José was painfully reminded that Herlinda was only able to eat the 24 undercooked soup for their last meals together. Whenever he ate he wondered if Herlinda
25 was eating properly. He hoped that wherever she was, she at least had better food.

26 196. After approximately a week in the hielera, José and several other detainees
27 were taken to a courthouse. Officials told José was told he had been sentenced to “time 28 served” for having entered the United States without authorization, but he has no

1 recollection of going before a judge, making any kind of plea, or actually being charged
2 or sentenced. Upon information and belief, José was never charged with or sentenced for 3 any criminal offense. He was transferred to ICE custody and placed in a detention center
4 in Florence, Arizona.

5 197. In ICE detention, José continued to ask officers about his daughter, with no
6 response. José had not heard anything about his daughter since their separation. The lack 7 of information or even response put José in a state of hopelessness. He cried most nights.

8 198. In late May 2018, José was transferred to the Folkston ICE Processing
9 Center in Folkston, Georgia, again shackled at the hands, waist, and feet during the flight.

10 199. Again, José asked about his daughter, but agents at Folkston ignored him.

11 200. José was soon transferred again, shackled, this time to Stewart ICE
12 Detention Center in Lumpkin, Georgia.

13 201. After arriving at Stewart Detention Center he contacted the Guatemalan 14 consulate to seek information about Herlinda. The consulate tracked down a number for 15 a worker at Lutheran Social Services (“Lutheran Services”) in New York, where Herlinda 16 was being held. José could not call Herlinda right away because he could not afford the 17 expensive calling card PINs needed for detainees to make calls from within the detention 18 center.

19 202. José began work as a janitor at the detention center, earning about two 20 dollars a day, to talk to his daughter. All of the money went toward purchasing PIN-21 based calling cards.

22 203. After saving enough, José called the Lutheran Services case manager from 23 detention on or about May 26, 2018, expressing his desperation to know his daughter’s
24 whereabouts and to speak with her. Throughout the entire process of attempting to locate
25 and speak with his daughter, José received no help from anyone working for the U.S.
26 government.

27 204. José and Herlinda talked for the first time on or about May 31, 2018—three 28 weeks after their separation in Arizona. When they finally connected by phone, it was

1 nearly impossible for them to speak because they were overcome with emotion and both
2 crying uncontrollably. They only had time to greet each other and weep for a few
3 minutes before the time on José's calling card expired and the call disconnected.

4 205. Hearing Herlinda's voice after so long apart, but still being unable to see
5 her or know when they would be reunited, was agony for José. Herlinda's crying so
6 distressed José that he began to doubt whether he should have even called her. He 7 worried the call made things worse for Herlinda because he could not tell his daughter
8 whether they would see each other again.

9 206. Deeply concerned for his daughter, José confirmed to the worker at 10 Lutheran Services that if he were to be deported, he wanted Herlinda to return to 11 Guatemala with him. The case worker was able to reach José's wife (Herlinda's mother)
12 in Guatemala who agreed with this decision. Although José feared the persecution and 13 danger that awaited them in Guatemala, he also feared what would happen to Herlinda if 14 she were left alone in a foreign land.

15 207. During the next seven weeks of their separation, José and Herlinda were 16 able to speak only about five more times for short periods of a few minutes.

17 208. José's detention in Stewart was deeply discouraging and degrading. He 18 cried every night thinking about what was happening to Herlinda. For a month, José sat 19 in his small cell and wondered if he would ever see his daughter again.

20 209. Although José wanted to pursue his immigration case in the United States,
21 he was increasingly desperate to see Herlinda again. Seeing the other asylum-seekers 22 languishing in ICE detention for months and even years, José began to believe that the 23 only way to be reunited with his daughter was if he chose not to pursue his asylum claim 24 and agreed to be deported.

25 210. On June 18, 2018, José appeared before an immigration judge at Stewart
26 Detention Center. Desperate to see his daughter and believing deportation to be the only 27 way to be reunited with her, José relinquished his asylum claim before the immigration 28 judge, who then ordered José removed.

1           211. Eight days after José appeared before the immigration judge, Judge Sabraw
2 in the Ms. L. case ordered the government to reunite the families like José and Herlinda 3 within 30 days and prohibited the government from deporting any parent who had been 4 separated from his child at the border before they could be reunified.

5           212. In late June, José was sent back to Folkston ICE Processing Center, again in 6 shackles.

7           213. There, ICE and/or HHS officials presented him with a form in English that 8 they instructed José to sign. Because the forms were in English, José did not fully 9 understand them. However, officials explained in Spanish that the form had two options:
10 1) he could be deported with Herlinda, or 2) he could be deported alone and he could 11 leave Herlinda in the United States. He recalls additional language on the form, but he 12 does not know what it said.

13           214. Unable to read or understand the forms, José refused to sign them. On or 14 about July 16, 2018, José’s legal representatives attempted to meet with him at Folkston
15 but were told that they could not see him. On July 18, 2018, an immigration judge re-
16 opened José’s case in light of the “totality of the circumstances” surrounding the previous 17 removal order.

18                   4. Herlinda Is Placed in ORR Custody More than 1,000 Miles
19                   Away from Her Father and Faces Abuse There

20           215. After Herlinda was separated from her father, she spent a night or two at an 21 unknown location before being put on a flight across the country—her first time ever on 22 an airplane, without any family by her side.

23           216. She arrived in New York City on or about May 11, 2018. She was placed at 24 Lutheran Social Services of New York, Safe Haven for Children Program run under the 25 auspices of ORR, where she spent some of her daytime hours. Herlinda spent her nights
26 in a foster home associated with Lutheran Services.

27           217. Herlinda’s ORR records reflect that about a day after her arrival in New 28 York, she cried when discussing the separation with the case manager. On May 17,

1 Herlinda, who “presented sad and timid,” told her case manager that she missed her
2 parents and wanted to talk to her dad.

3 218. While in ORR custody, Herlinda suffered multiple instances of harm. On 4 or about May 21, Herlinda was watching television at her foster home when a male minor
5 residing at the same home inappropriately touched her chest. In one of her weekly
6 meetings with her clinician, Herlinda reported that this made her feel uncomfortable.
7 Child Protective Services was informed and law enforcement officers came to the home
8 to investigate the incident. According to an ORR Counseling Progress report, Herlinda 9 was scared when she saw the law enforcement officers and “did not understand why they 10 were in the home.”

11 219. Following the inappropriate touching at the first foster home, Herlinda was 12 moved to another foster home. However, the same boy remained in her “class” at 13 Lutheran Services, and on May 24, staff noted that he attempted to grab Herlinda’s face 14 and kiss her. Their teacher separated them and explained to both that the behavior was 15 wrong.

16 220. Herlinda and the minor were “monitored,” but ORR records do not indicate 17 they were placed in separate classes. Herlinda had difficulty focusing in school after 18 these incidents.

19 221. Herlinda reported to a case worker that the grandmother in the foster home
20 where Herlinda resided had spoken to Herlinda harshly, using offensive words that made 21 her uncomfortable. The words were “pendeja” (“stupid,” “dumbass,” or “asshole”) and 22 “carajo” (“fuck,” “shit,” or “damn it”). The grandmother claimed that she had only said 23 “pendejada” (“foolishness” or “stupid thing”). A caseworker told the grandmother that 24 such words were offensive to people from Guatemala, like five-year-old Herlinda.

25 222. In several instances, Herlinda was locked alone in a room as “punishment.”
26
27
28

1                   5. Herlinda and José Are Reunited and Face the Effects of
2                   Separation

3           223. Around July 16, 2018, ICE transferred José, shackled again by the wrists, 4 waist, and feet, by plane to another detention center in Port Isabel, Texas.

5           224. Before he left Folkston for Port Isabel, José was given a DNA test.

6           225. José was unsure what would happen once he arrived in Port Isabel but 7 believed he was getting closer to finally reuniting with Herlinda.

8           226. At Port Isabel, officials told him that he was going to be reunited with his 9 daughter and released on parole.

10          227. ORR records reflect that Herlinda left her foster home in New York and 11 boarded a plane for Texas around 2:00 A.M. on July 21, 2018.

12          228. Later that day, an official called José to speak with his attorney on the 13 phone. Before José could take the call, another official told him to go back to his cell to 14 gather his belongings.

15          229. Although José was never told he was going to meet his daughter, he 16 followed the officers, hoping to see her. They then stopped and entered an office where 17 José saw Herlinda watching television. José immediately began crying tears of joy. He 18 realized that at times during the separation he had lost hope that he would ever see her 19 again.

20          230. José also felt immediate anxiety when he saw Herlinda. He was concerned 21 about how the separation had affected her emotionally and was unsure how she would 22 react now.

23          231. When José stepped into the room Herlinda looked over at him with 24 uncertainty. For a brief moment, it seemed that she did not recognize him. But then — 25 realizing that her father was finally standing in front of her — she ran over to him and 26 cried as she embraced him. José describes this as a “beautiful moment” that “brought 27 [him] to life again.”
28

1           232. Because they had nowhere to go, the two spent a few days at a Catholic
2 Church in Texas before they were released together.

3           233. During that time, as joyous as he felt at having his beloved daughter back
4 with him, José was also deeply troubled at the thought of the harm Herlinda experienced 5 in foster care and of his inability to protect her from those harms.

6           234. José and Herlinda resettled in Massachusetts, where they are pursuing their 7 immigration cases.

8           235. The two and a half months of separation “emotionally destroyed both” José
9 and Herlinda. In the eight months since the reunification with his daughter, José has 10 noticed the ongoing and lasting effects that the trauma of separation has had on Herlinda.

11           236. Herlinda is far more sensitive than she was before the separation and cries
12 frequently for no apparent reason.

13           237. Since the separation, Herlinda exhibits symptoms of PTSD.

14           238. José notices that she is now impatient and quick to anger, on occasion 15 hitting him.

16           239. In calls with her mother, Herlinda suddenly and inexplicably becomes 17 angry and hangs up. She was not like this before the separation.

18           240. After reunifying with her father, Herlinda did not want to go to school.

19           241. José perceived that Herlinda’s self-esteem has suffered.

20           242. Even now, Herlinda has nightmares about the separation and her detention 21 that wake her at night and make it difficult for her to sleep. José finds it difficult and 22 shocking to see his previously happy daughter act this way, but tells himself he must 23 “remember what she went through.”

24           243. The prolonged separation has also impacted José deeply.

25           244. While José was separated from Herlinda, he wept constantly and had 26 trouble sleeping. The insomnia persisted for months even after he and Herlinda were 27 reunited and continues to the present.

28

1           245. José did not learn of all the incidents of harm that Herlinda endured in ORR
2 custody until after their reunification. When he learned of this additional harm to 3 Herlinda, it caused José further distress.

4           246. At night José still remembers the “pain of it all.”

5           247. José has had difficulty concentrating on tasks and finds that these events
6 have left him with constant sadness.

7           248. José often does not feel like speaking with anyone, including family
8 members in Guatemala.

9           249. José feels deeply depressed and at times is unable to enjoy life.

10          250. The separation deeply damaged José and Herlinda, and José attempts to 11 seek solace in his faith.

12           D. The Government’s Forcible Separation of Parents and Children
13           Caused Irreparable Harm

14          251. Forcible parent-child separations have long been known to cause significant 15 short- and long-term damage to mental, physical, and emotional health.

16          252. Keeping parents separated from their children with “little or no direct 17 access to basic information about their health or general well-being, plainly causes
18 irreparable harm.”<sup>33</sup> Children attach to their caregiver from the time they are born, and 19 the children’s sense of safety “depends on that relationship.”<sup>34</sup> Disrupting that 20 relationship causes “the parts of the brain that deal with attachment and fear” to “develop
21 differently.”<sup>35</sup> It is not surprising, then, that “[s]eparation irreparably harms [families] 22 every minute it persists.”<sup>36</sup>

23 _____
24 <sup>33</sup> Jacinto-Castanon de Nolasco v. U.S. Immigration & Customs Enft, 319 F. Supp. 3d
491, 502 (D.D.C. 2018) (emphasis added).

25 <sup>34</sup> William Wan, What Separation from Parents Does to Children: ‘The Effect is
26 Catastrophic’, WASH. POST (Jun. 18, 2018), <https://perma.cc/7MA6-X7MB>.

27 <sup>35</sup> Id.

28 <sup>36</sup> Jacinto-Castanon de Nolasco, 319 F. Supp. 3d at 503.

1           253. The AAP explained the effects of separation on children: “[H]ighly stressful 2 experiences, like family separation, can . . . disrupt[] a child’s brain architecture and
3 affect[] his or her short- and long-term health. This type of prolonged exposure to serious
4 stress—known as toxic stress—can carry lifelong consequences for children.”<sup>37</sup> Children 5 who experience trauma like forced separation from a parent “are at a much greater risk of 6 developing mental health disorders such as depression, anxiety, addiction, Attention
7 Deficit Hyperactivity Disorder (‘ADHD’) and PTSD. Their physical health is also 8 negatively affected.”<sup>38</sup> The materials cited here barely scratch the surface of the wealth 9 of expert material describing the harms caused by family separation. Given the 10 “extensive evidence,” the irreparable harm caused by forcibly separating parents and 11 children is indisputable.

12           254. All of these circumstances show that the government intentionally inflicted 13 the severe harm caused by forcible separation on families, like Plaintiffs, who crossed the 14 U.S. border. The government did so to deter future immigrants from coming to the 15 United States.

16           E. The Government’s Policy of Forcible Separation Was Unconstitutional
17           and Illegal

18           255. In addition to the harm it caused, the separation policy intentionally
19 violated the constitutional rights of those separated, including the right to family integrity 20 and to equal protection.

---

22           <sup>37</sup> Jacinto-Castanon de Nolasco, 319 F. Supp. 3d at 503 (quoting Colleen Kraft, Am.
23 Acad. of Pediatrics, AAP Statement Opposing Separation of Children and Parents at the 24 Border (May 8, 2018), <https://perma.cc/23ET-GN7S>); see also Allison Abrams, LCSW-
25 R, Damage of Separating Families: The Psychological Effects on Children, PSYCHOL.
26 TODAY (Jun. 22, 2018), <https://perma.cc/H967-BBWV> (Because a child’s “secure
27 attachment comes from the child’s perceptions of his or her caregiver’s availability 28 (physical accessibility) . . . separations as brief as one week in duration could negatively impact the quality of attachments.”).

<sup>38</sup> Abrams, supra note 37.

1           256. For decades, this nation’s highest court has recognized the fundamental 2 right to family integrity protected by the Constitution: “It is cardinal with us that the 3 custody, care and nurture of the child reside first in the parents, whose primary function
4 and freedom include preparation for obligations the state can neither supply nor hinder.”<sup>39</sup>
5 These constitutional protections extend to citizens and non-citizens alike, even when 6 confined by the government.<sup>40</sup>

7           257. Through its family separation policy, in the name of deterrence, the United
8 States tore immigrant children from their parents, sent the children thousands of miles 9 away, refused to inform parents and children of each other’s whereabouts or well-being,
10 refused to provide adequate means for parents and children to talk with each other, and 11 failed to have any system for tracking the children or ensuring that families could ever be 12 reunited.

13           258. As Judge Sabraw concluded in Ms. L. v. U.S. Immigration and Customs 14 Enforcement, the government’s actions “shock[] the conscience.”<sup>41</sup> “[N]othing in federal 15 law suggests that deterring immigration by indefinitely separating families once the 16 parents have been transferred to immigration custody is a compelling or legitimate 17 government objective.”<sup>42</sup>

18           259. The United States’ family separation policy was also motivated by 19 discriminatory animus against arriving Latino immigrants of Central American origin, 20 who were targeted for deprivation of their fundamental right to family integrity.

21           260. The United States’ discriminatory purpose is evidenced by the pretextual 22 nature of the stated justification for separating only those families (the vast majority of 23

---

24 <sup>39</sup> Prince v. Massachusetts, 321 U.S. 158, 166 (1944).

25 <sup>40</sup> Jacinto-Castanon de Nolasco, 319 F. Supp. 3d at 500 (“The fact that [families are] 26 lawfully detained in immigration custody does not eliminate [their] due process right to family integrity.”).

27 <sup>41</sup> Ms. L., 310 F. Supp. 3d at 1142.

28 <sup>42</sup> Jacinto-Castanon de Nolasco, 319 F. Supp. 3d at 502.

1 whom are Latino and Central American) arriving at the southern United States border, the 2 unusual sequence of events leading to the promulgation of the policy, and
3 contemporaneous statements by policymakers showing a marked animus toward Latino
4 immigrants from Central America.<sup>43</sup>

5 261. The family separation policy disproportionately impacted individuals from 6 Central America: more than 95 percent of the members in the Ms. L. certified class are 7 from Central American countries.

8 262. As with the fundamental right to family integrity, the Constitutional right to 9 equal protection under the law, and to freedom from invidious discrimination by the 10 government on the basis of race or national origin has also long been recognized as 11 “extend[ing] to anyone, citizen or stranger, who is subject to the laws of a State,” even 12 those not lawfully present. Plyler v. Doe, 457 U.S. 202, 215 (1982) (emphasis removed).

13 F. The United States Applied the Already Cruel Separation Policy in a 14 Deliberately Inhumane Manner to Further Harm Families

15 263. Defendants made the harm suffered by Plaintiffs and others subject to its 16 family separation policy far worse by implementing its policy with carelessness and 17 callous disregard for the physical safety and emotional well-being of Plaintiffs.

18 264. The Administration then multiplied the harm it intended to cause by the 19 shocking and intentional carelessness with which it implemented its policy. The Attorney
20 General announced the Zero Tolerance Policy without any prior notice to certain DHS
21
22
23

---

24 <sup>43</sup> See, e.g., Josh Dawsey, Trump Derides Protections for Immigrants from ‘Shithole’
25 Countries, WASH. POST (Jan. 12, 2018), <https://perma.cc/2HP4-PFYK> (including El 26 Salvador as a “shithole” country from which immigration to the United States should not 27 be welcomed, and expressing a preference for immigrants “from countries such as 28 Norway”); Donald J. Trump (@realDonaldTrump), TWITTER (Jun. 19, 2018, 6:52 AM), <https://perma.cc/MLC6-8VX5> (characterizing “illegal immigrants” as “pour[ing] into and infest[ing] our Country”).

1 and HHS (including ORR) officials,<sup>44</sup> purposely giving those employees no time to plan
2 for or coordinate implementation.<sup>45</sup>

3 265. ORR was aware as of at least November 2017 of an increase in the number 4 of children in ORR custody separated from their parents, many of whom were very 5 young children.<sup>46</sup> Yet the government failed to adequately prepare for the increased 6 number of children separated from parents in its custody.

7 266. Among other things, this deliberate lack of planning resulted in the 8 government failing to provide adequate detention facilities, failing to track separated 9 families, failing to communicate with parents about their children's welfare, and failing 10 to take basic care to comply with child welfare standards, all of which compounded the 11 harms already inflicted on families who had been forcibly separated.

12 267. The government's family separation policy and deliberate lack of planning
13 and coordination among agencies also caused children to be detained in CBP facilities 14 beyond the 72-hour legal limit. During the Zero Tolerance period, thirty-nine percent of 15 separated children were detained by CBP for more than seventy-two hours.<sup>47</sup>

16 1. Defendant Subjected Plaintiffs to Dangerous Detention Facilities
17 Unsuited for Families with Children

18 268. As a direct result of the indiscriminate and reckless apprehension, under the 19 pretext of intending to prosecute, thousands of families like Plaintiffs' seeking entry into 20

---

21 <sup>44</sup> U.S. GOV'T ACCOUNTABILITY OFFICE, GAO-19-163, UNACCOMPANIED CHILDREN:
22 AGENCY EFFORTS TO REUNIFY CHILDREN SEPARATED FROM PARENTS AT THE BORDER
23 12 (2018), available at <https://perma.cc/UYZ9-UBYQ> [hereinafter GAO REPORT] ("DHS
24 and HHS officials told us that the agencies did not take specific planning steps because 25 they did not have advance notice of the Attorney General's April 2018 memo.").

26 <sup>45</sup> A high-ranking HHS official testified before Congress that ORR considered planning
27 for the increase but was specifically told not to. Id.; see also id. at 14 ("DHS officials 28 told [HHS leadership] that DHS did not have an official policy of separating parents and children.").

<sup>46</sup> See id. at 12-13; DHS OIG REPORT I at 15, 24.

<sup>47</sup> DHS OIG REPORT I at 36.

1 the United States,<sup>48</sup> the CBP-run hieleras in which Plaintiffs were initially detained were 2 dangerously overcrowded and in egregious violation of federal health and safety
3 requirements.

4 269. Defendant failed to provide Plaintiffs with basic hygiene items, failed to 5 provide access to safe and sanitary restrooms, and failed to provide proper food and clean 6 drinking water, proper clothing, bedding, hygiene products, and appropriate meals.

7 270. Defendant detained Plaintiffs in conditions that were so overcrowded—
8 with adults and children alike—that detainees did not have enough room to sit or lie 9 down to rest. The overcrowding, lack of mattress and blankets, and constant lighting in 10 the hieleras deprived Plaintiffs of sleep.

11 271. Defendant placed Plaintiffs in freezing cold cages and deprived Plaintiffs of 12 warmth by taking away their clothing and belongings.

13 272. In subjecting Plaintiffs Abel and Herlinda to inhumane and unsafe 14 conditions in CBP detention, Defendant violated federal law and policy requiring that 15 minors who are detained by CBP or other DHS agencies, or who are held in HHS 16 custody, be held in “facilities that are safe and sanitary,” and that account for “the 17 particular vulnerability of minors.”<sup>49</sup> Defendant violated requirements that minors
18 detained by CBP be provided access to toilets and sinks, adequate temperature control

---

19
20 <sup>48</sup> The U.S. government has separated more than 5,000 families at the southern border
21 since 2017. Joint Status Report at 1, 12, Ms. L. v. U.S. Immigration and Customs Enf't, 22 No. 18- cv-00428 DMS MDD (S.D. Cal. November 6, 2019), ECF No. 495 (the 23 government acknowledged that, for the original class, as many as 2,814 children were 24 separated from their parents, and has thus far recognized an additional 1,556 children as 25 part of the expanded class); ECF 439-1 (Pls.’ Mem. in Support of Mot. to Enf. Prelim.
26 Inj.) at 7 (noting that government reported 911 child separations between June 26, 2018
27 and June 29, 2019, after the preliminary injunction was entered); see also HHS OIG
28 REPORT I at 11.

<sup>49</sup> Flores v. Reno, Stipulated Settlement Agreement ¶ 12.A, No. 85-CV-4544 (C.D. Cal.
Jan. 17, 1997); see also U.S. Customs & Border Prot., U.S. Border Patrol Policy: Hold Rooms and Short Term Custody (2008); Flores v. Barr, 934 F.3d 910, 916 (9th Cir.
2019).

1 and ventilation, drinking water and food, as well as “medical assistance if the minor is in 2 need of emergency services.”<sup>50</sup>

3 273. Defendant failed to provide Abel with medical assistance once it became 4 apparent that he was likely in need of emergency services, in violation of the mandatory
5 Flores consent decree.<sup>51</sup>

6 2. Defendant Failed to Track Parent and Child Relationships and 7 to Communicate with Parents About Children’s Whereabouts
8 and Safety, and Interfered with Plaintiffs’ Asylum Claims

9 274. Despite the fact that tracking separated children was as simple as adding a 10 checkbox to an ORR / DHS referral page,<sup>52</sup> these two agencies primarily responsible for 11 implementing the policy instituted no “consistent way to indicate in their data systems 12 children and parents separated at the border” until at least the summer of 2018.<sup>53</sup>

13 275. The El Paso pilot program in from July through November 2017 revealed
14 that DHS was woefully underprepared to track separated families through its information
15 technology systems. According to the DHS Office of the Inspector General (OIG), CBP 16 personnel “relied on local spreadsheets to document family separations,” which led to 17 data errors and “prevented ICE and CBP personnel in other locations from seeing where 18 El Paso Sector Border Patrol agents had separated family members.”<sup>54</sup>

19
20
21 <sup>50</sup> Flores v. Reno, Stipulated Settlement Agreement ¶ 12.A, No. 85-CV-4544 (C.D. Cal.
22 Jan. 17, 1997). See also Flores, 913 F.3d at 916.

23 <sup>51</sup> Flores v. Reno, Stipulated Settlement Agreement ¶ 12.A, No. 85-CV-4544 (C.D. Cal.
24 Jan. 17, 1997).

25 <sup>52</sup> Oversight of the Trump Administration’s Family Separation Policy: Hearing Before
26 the H. Comm. on the Judiciary (Feb. 26, 2019) (statement of Scott Lloyd, Senior Advisor, 27 Center for Faith and Opportunity Initiatives, U.S. Department of Health and Human 28 Services, at 4), available at <https://perma.cc/P97Q-JB58>.

<sup>53</sup> GAO REPORT, supra note 44, Highlights; see also id. at 16-19.

<sup>54</sup> DHS OIG REPORT II at 14–15.

1           276. El Paso sector CBP officials raised concerns to CBP headquarters about the 2 lack of functionality to track family separations in their computer systems but
3 headquarters failed to make any changes in response to those concerns.<sup>55</sup>

4           277. The U.S. government thus was on notice at least as of November 2017 that 5 government databases could not properly track families once the child was separated
6 from the parent. It was also aware that DHS component agencies needed to better
7 coordinate with each other and with ORR before a vast expansion of family separation
8 across the length of the southern border. But the government plowed ahead with its 9 policy of mass family separation despite these identified defects and without making any 10 improvements to its IT systems.

11           278. When the government ramped up family separations during the Zero 12 Tolerance Policy, these deficiencies were predictably multiplied on a mass scale, and 13 with devastating results.

14           279. CBP entered inaccurate and incomplete information in its systems,
15 including failing to link parents and children as separated families. These initial errors
16 had a ripple effect through other government tracking systems: ICE could not readily
17 identify parents in its custody who were separated from their children and HHS/ORR
18 systems lacked even a field to indicate that a child had been separated from her parents
19 until July 2018—after a federal court halted the practice of family separation.<sup>56</sup>

20           280. The most staggering result of this failure was that the Administration had 21 no ready records of where thousands of parents' children were located, and could not 22 promptly reunite parents and children,<sup>57</sup> even when ordered to do so by a U.S. District 23 Court.<sup>58</sup>

---

24
25 <sup>55</sup> Id.

26 <sup>56</sup> Id. at 13, 21.

27 <sup>57</sup> Id. at 9–11; see Kevin Sieff, The Chaotic Effort to Reunite Immigrant Parents with 28 their Separated Kids, WASH. POST (June 21, 2018), <https://perma.cc/HQ6W-HLBK>;

(continued...)

1           281. After separation, parents and children often did not know each other's
2 whereabouts for weeks or months, as was the case with Plaintiffs. When the children 3 were taken, "officers often failed to fully explain to parents what was happening and how 4 the adults could get in touch with their kids."<sup>59</sup>

5           282. The government failed to provide parents with any "paperwork"
6 documenting the location or well-being of their children, or to enable communication
7 between parents and their separated children.<sup>60</sup> One Texas federal district court
8 magistrate judge observed in January 2018, when addressing the government's failure to 9 track families separated during the 2017 pilot of the family separation policy, that "[t]he 10 practical effect" of this failure was "to create a 'blackout' period where parent and child
11 are wholly incommunicado from each other."<sup>61</sup>

12           283. Plaintiffs here experienced the devastating effects of the government's 13 failure to link the parents' cases with those of their children and to provide information to 14 the parents about the children's whereabouts.

15           284. The anguish of José's and Abel's separations from their children was 16 exacerbated by the government's failure to provide information about their children's 17 whereabouts, well-being, and plan for custody. Obet and Herlinda suffered further harm 18 from not knowing where their fathers were and being unable to communicate with them.

---

19
20 Miriam Jordan, Torn Apart by Zero Tolerance, Kept Apart by Red Tape, N.Y. TIMES
21 (June 24, 2018), <https://perma.cc/EY2J-XYPT>.

22 <sup>58</sup> See Evan Halper, Federal Investigators Find Many Failures in Trump's Family
23 Separation Policy, L.A. TIMES (Oct. 2, 2018), <https://perma.cc/ZP4B-HQVE>. These 24 circumstances led the court to conclude that the "unfortunate reality" of the family separation policy was that "migrant children [were] not accounted for with the same efficiency and accuracy as property." Ms. L., 310 F. Supp. 3d at 1144.

25 <sup>59</sup> Halper, supra note 58.

26 <sup>60</sup> See United States v. Dominguez-Portillo, No. EP-17-MJ-4409-MAT, 2018 WL
27 315759, at *1–*2, *9 (W.D. Tex. Jan. 5, 2018).

28 <sup>61</sup> Id. at *9.

1           285. Even after José and Abel were finally able to obtain contact information for 2 their children as the result of their own efforts, phone calls were logistically difficult and 3 expensive to make, severely limiting their communication.<sup>62</sup>

4           286. Defendant also violated federal law and policy requiring children held in 5 ORR custody be provided with “contact with family members.”<sup>63</sup>

6           287. Furthermore, Defendant used separation as a means to pressure José and 7 Abel to relinquish their asylum claims. Defendant leveraged José’s and Abel’s
8 separation from their children to compel them to abandon their asylum cases, including 9 by causing extreme duress through the prolonged separations themselves, pressuring José
10 and Abel to sign English forms they could not understand, and deliberately 11 misrepresenting to them that they had to agree to deportation to see their children again.

12           288. Defendant’s actions in coercing José and Abel to abandon their asylum 13 claims violated its mandatory, nondiscretionary duties under federal statutes and 14 regulations. See 8 U.S.C. § 1225(b)(1)(A)(ii); 8 C.F.R. §§ 235.4; 235.3(b)(4); 241.8(e).
15 Defendants’ misrepresentations to José and Abel that they could only reunify with their 16 children if they agreed to accept deportation also violated the constitutional guarantee of 17 procedural due process.

18                           3. Defendants’ Actions Created Conditions Ripe for Alarming 19                           Instances of Child Abuse

20           289. Defendants ignored applicable child welfare standards in the rush to expand
21 detention capacity to accommodate the influx of families affected by the Policy. In so 22 doing, Defendants violated mandatory, non-discretionary duties.

---

24 <sup>62</sup> See Halper, supra note 58; Jordan, supra note 57; Jack Herrera, A New Report Reveals
25 How Family Separation Led Border Officials to Break the Law, PACIFIC STANDARD
(Oct. 4, 2018), <https://perma.cc/9BGJ-LT8Q> .

26 <sup>63</sup> Flores v. Lynch, 828 F.3d 898, 903 (9th Cir. 2016) (citing Flores v. Reno, Stipulated 27 Settlement Agreement, No. 85-CV-4544 (C.D. Cal. Jan. 17, 1997)); see also ORR Policy
28 Guide § 3.3.10.

1           290. The family separation policy caused a sudden increase in the number of 2 children, including very young children, in ORR custody. Despite indicators by mid-
3 2017 that larger numbers of very young children were entering ORR custody, ORR was 4 unprepared to adequately care for these children.<sup>64</sup>

5           291. Children age twelve and under are considered “tender aged.” When those 6 children enter ORR custody, they must be placed in special facilities that are licensed to 7 care for younger children.

8           292. The family separation policy caused the number of tender-aged children in 9 ORR custody to increase substantially and exceeded ORR’s capacity to house them in 10 congregate care facilities. Upon information and belief, facilities like Cayuga and 11 Lutheran Services had to quickly recruit additional foster families and place larger 12 numbers of children in individual foster homes than had been previously lived in those 13 homes.

14           293. These foster homes were ill-prepared to house the number of children that 15 came into their care. The resulting abuses suffered by children, including Obet and 16 Herlinda, were compounded by ORR’s failure to properly plan for a large number of 17 young children in its custody and to monitor the children in these foster homes.

18           294. Defendant’s failure to ensure that children placed in ORR custody were in 19 “facilities that are safe . . . and that are consistent with the [government’s] concern for the 20 particular vulnerability of minors” violated its duties under the Flores consent decree.<sup>65</sup>

21           295. The Administration’s intent to inflict the trauma of family separation as a 22 deterrent — followed by its failures to provide children with appropriate care and 23 protection from abuse, track separated children, and tell their parents anything about their 24

25 _____
26 <sup>64</sup> HHS OIG REPORT II at 6.

27 <sup>65</sup> Flores v. Reno, Stipulation Settlement Agreement § V ¶ 12.A; see Flores v. Lynch, 828 28 F.3d 898 (9th Cir. 2016) (holding that Flores consent decree “unambiguously applies to accompanied minors”).

1 whereabouts and well-being — evinces an intent to increase their suffering to maximize
2 the deterrent effect of the family separation policy.

3 CONSEQUENCES OF DEFENDANT’S WRONGFUL ACTS

4 296. The federal government deliberately violated Plaintiffs’ constitutional
5 rights, including their right to family integrity, and failed in its basic duties not to harm
6 those in its custody.

7 297. The government’s actions and failures were designed to and did cause
8 Plaintiffs severe trauma and emotional distress.

9 298. The government knew that forcibly taking Plaintiffs would fill them with 10 terror, desperation, and anguish.

11 299. The government purposefully inflicted that trauma on Plaintiffs to instill 12 fear in others.

13 300. The government then compounded that trauma by keeping Plaintiffs apart 14 for at least seventy days, without telling them anything about the other’s whereabouts or 15 well-being, without allowing them even to speak to one another for twenty-two days, and 16 without any plan for reuniting them.

17 301. And, as a result of the government’s actions and failures, Herlinda and Obet 18 were exposed to abuse in a foster care system overburdened with unaccompanied children.

19 302. Plaintiffs will carry the harm done to them for the rest of their lives. The 20 government’s conduct here is unconscionable, and it cannot be excused in a civilized 21 society.

22 CLAIMS FOR RELIEF

23 COUNT ONE

24 INTENTIONAL INFLICTION OF EMOTIONAL DISTRESS

25 303. Plaintiffs re-allege each allegation in the preceding paragraphs 1 through 26 302 as though fully set forth here.

1           304. Defendant, federal officials, and federal employees referenced above
2 engaged in extreme and outrageous conduct with an intent to cause, or at least a reckless 3 disregard of the probability of causing, Plaintiffs to suffer severe emotional distress.

4           305. Defendant, federal officials, and federal employees referenced above
5 intended to cause, and did cause, Plaintiffs to suffer severe emotional distress by forcibly
6 separating Plaintiffs father and child from each other without their consent and despite 7 the obvious terror caused by the separation, and flying the children thousands of miles 8 across the country.

9           306. Defendant, federal officials, and federal employees referenced above
10 intended to cause, and did cause, Plaintiffs to suffer severe emotional distress by, inter
11 alia, failing to develop and use a system for tracking the existence of the parent-child
12 relationship, exposing children to the risk and reality of abuse while in ORR custody, 13 withholding from the parents any information about their child's location or welfare for 14 weeks or months at a time, not allowing families to communicate with each other or 15 severely limiting such opportunities, never giving any indication that the parents and 16 children would ever be reunited, and interfering with Plaintiffs' right to seek asylum in 17 the United States by using Plaintiffs' distress at their separation to coerce Plaintiffs to 18 sign documents authorizing their removal from the United States.

19           307. Defendant, federal officials, and federal employees referenced above
20 further intended to cause, and did cause, Plaintiffs to suffer severe emotional distress by 21 subjecting Plaintiffs to inhumane detention conditions prior to their separation. This 22 includes (among other acts mentioned above and such acts that may become apparent 23 during discovery) denying Plaintiffs proper food, clean drinking water, hygiene products, 24 clothing, and appropriate restroom facilities during their time in CBP detention, holding 25 Plaintiffs in the freezing cold hieleras that lacked ventilation, and subjecting Plaintiffs to 26 mental anguish through verbal cruelty.

27           308. Defendant, federal officials, and federal employees referenced above
28 confirmed their intent to cause severe emotional distress by failing to plan for or secure

1 resources to accommodate the increase in children designated as UACs as a result of the 2 family separation policy, failing to provide a child welfare or child safety justification for 3 forcibly separating children from their parents, failing to track families, failing to account 4 for all the children separated from their parents, and failing to craft any type of 5 reunification plan until receiving a court order from a federal judge.

6 309. The behavior of Defendant, federal officials, and federal employees 7 referenced above was extreme and outrageous under the circumstances, particularly in 8 light of Plaintiffs' recent flight from abuse and persecution.

9 310. As a direct and proximate result of that conduct, Plaintiffs suffered severe 10 emotional distress throughout their time in Defendant's custody and continue to suffer the 11 lasting effects of that distress today.

12 311. Under the Federal Tort Claims Act, 28 U.S.C. §§ 1346(b), 2671-2680, the 13 United States is liable to Plaintiffs for intentional infliction of emotional distress.

14 COUNT TWO
15 NEGLIGENCE

16 312. Plaintiffs re-allege each allegation in the preceding paragraphs 1 through 17 311 as though fully set forth here.

18 313. Defendant, federal officials, and federal employees referenced above had a 19 legal duty to Plaintiffs to act with ordinary care and prudence so as not to cause harm or 20 injury to Plaintiffs. They also had mandatory, non-discretionary duties including but not 21 limited to, those imposed by the United States constitution, the Flores consent decree, 22 federal statute, and federal regulations.

23 314. Defendant, federal officials, and federal employees referenced above acted 24 unreasonably by violating their duties while Plaintiffs were in Defendant's custody.

25 315. Defendant, federal officials, and federal employees referenced above
26 violated those duties by inter alia forcibly separating Plaintiffs from their children 27 without their consent, and flying the children thousands of miles across the country.
28

1           316. Defendant, federal officials, and federal employees referenced above
2 violated those duties by inter alia failing to develop and use a system for tracking the 3 existence of the parent-child relationship, exposing children to the risk and reality of 4 abuse while under ORR custody, withholding from the parents any information about 5 their child's location or welfare for weeks or months at a time, not allowing families to 6 communicate with each other or severely limiting such opportunities, never giving any 7 indication that the parents and children would ever be reunited, and interfering with 8 Plaintiffs' right to seek asylum in the United States by using Plaintiffs' distress at their 9 separation to coerce Plaintiffs to sign documents authorizing their removal from the 10 United States.

11           317. Defendant, federal officials, and federal employees referenced above
12 violated those duties by subjecting Plaintiffs to inhumane detention conditions prior to 13 their separation. This includes (among other acts mentioned above and such acts that 14 may become apparent during discovery) denying Plaintiffs proper food, clean drinking 15 water, hygiene products, clothing, and appropriate restroom facilities during their time in 16 CBP detention, holding Plaintiffs in the freezing cold hieleras that lacked ventilation, and 17 subjecting Plaintiffs to mental anguish through verbal cruelty.

18           318. Defendant, federal officials, and federal employees referenced above 19 further violated those duties by failing to plan for or secure resources to accommodate the 20 increase in children designates as UACs as a result of the family separated policy, failing 21 to provide a child welfare or safety justification for forcibly separating children from 22 their parents, failing to track families, failing to account for all children separated from 23 their parents, and failing to craft any type of reunification plan until receiving a court 24 order from a federal judge.

25           319. Defendant, federal officials, and federal employees referenced above
26 violated their duties to Plaintiffs by unreasonably ignoring Abel's pleas for medical 27 attention for his son, despite their knowledge Obet was suffering from a severe heart
28 condition and developing an acute respiratory infection.

1
2
3
4
5
6
7
8
9
10
11
12
13
14
15
16
17
18 19 20
21
22
23
24
25
26
27
28

COVINGTON & BURLING LLP
Jessica R. Hanson*
1999 Avenue of the Stars, Suite 3500
Los Angeles, CA 90067-4643
Telephone: (424) 332-4800
jhanson@cov.com
Attorneys for Plaintiffs

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
DISTRICT OF ARIZONA

Civil Cover Sheet

This automated JS-44 conforms generally to the manual JS-44 approved by the Judicial Conference of the United States in September 1974. The data is required for the use of the Clerk of Court for the purpose of initiating the civil docket sheet. The information contained herein neither replaces nor supplements the filing and service of pleadings or other papers as required by law. This form is authorized for use only in the District of Arizona.

The completed cover sheet must be printed directly to PDF and filed as an attachment to the Complaint or Notice of Removal.

A.P.F. on his own behalf and on Plaintiff behalf of his minor child, O.B. ;
(s): J.V.S. on his own behalf and on behalf of his minor child, H.Y.

County of Residence: Outside the State of Arizona

County Where Claim For Relief Arose: Yuma

Plaintiff's Atty(s):

Keith Beauchamp
Coppersmith Brockelman PLC
2800 N. Central Ave, Suite 1900
Phoenix , Arizona 85004
602-381-5490

Shelley Tolman
Coppersmith Brockelman PLC
2800 N. Central Ave, Suite 1900
Phoenix, Arizona 85004
602-381-5488

Michelle Lapointe
Southern Poverty Law Center
PO Box 1287
Decatur, Georgia 30031
404-521-6700

Norma Ventura
Southern Poverty Law Center
PO Box 1287

Defendant United States of America (s):

County of Residence: Outside the State of Arizona

Defendant's Atty(s):

Decatur, Georgia 30031
404-521-6700

Matthew Schlesinger
Covington & Burling LLP
One City Center, 850 Tenth Street, NW
Washington, DC 20001-4956
202-662-5581

Jason Carey
Covington & Burling LLP
One City Center, 850 Tenth Street, NW
Washington, DC 20001-4956
202-662-5581

Terra White White Fulham
Covington & Burling LLP
Once City Center, 850 Tenth Street, NW
Washington, DC 20001-4956
202-662-5581

Paul R. Chavez
Southern Poverty Law Center
PO Box 370037
Miami, Florida 33137
786-347-2056

Swati R. Prakash
Covington & Burling LLP
620 Eighth Avenue
New York, New York 10018-1405
212-841-1174

Jessica R. Hanson
Covington & Burling LLP
1999 Avenue of the Stars, Suite 3500
Los Angeles, California 90067-4643
424-332-4800

---

II. Basis of Jurisdiction:            2. U.S. Government Defendant

III. Citizenship of Principal Parties (Diversity Cases Only)

Plaintiff:- 3 Citizen of Foreign Country
Defendant:- 5 Non AZ corp and Principal place of Business outside AZ

IV. Origin : 1. Original Proceeding

V. Nature of Suit: 360 Other Personal Injury

VI.Cause of Action: 28 U.S.C. §§ 1331, 1346(b), 1402(b), and 2671–2680. Civil tort claims against the United States pursuant to the Federal Tort Claims Act

VII. Requested in Complaint

Class Action: No

Dollar Demand:

Jury Demand: Yes

VIII. This case IS RELATED to Case Number 2:19-cv-05217 assigned to Judge Susan R. Bolton.

---

Signature: s/ Keith Beauchamp

Date: 01/10/2020

If any of this information is incorrect, please go back to the Civil Cover Sheet Input form using the Back button in your browser and change it. Once correct, save this form as a PDF and include it as an attachment to your case opening documents.

Revised: 01/2014